spellchecker still takes priority. I think I should also point out here that the English spelling of things like Colour and Humour and specialised are spelt differently to the US-English versions Here's another screenshot. Interestingly the spell checker is now recognising colour and humour as 'okay' (probably from months and months of telling it otherwise- but as you can see, it still doesn't like recognising and specialised because the English spelling of those is with an S and not a Z.- it is important that you Americans know this!! ;))

- now after using the php spellchecker, php wants me to correct the spelling of spellchecker to spellchecker with a hyphen- because that is the American way- I presume? The same applies to 'screenshot'.